2002 ESSENTIAL TELECOMMUNICATIONS PRICE FACTOR*

Case No. PU-439-01-526

October 24, 2001

Under North Dakota law, certain local exchange companies, including Qwest Corporation and Citizens Telecommunications Company of North Dakota, have the option of changing the price of some local exchange services by the amount of a price factor. This price factor is called the essential telecommunications price factor and it can be applied to services like residential and business local calling.

North Dakota law provides a formula for calculating the essential telecommunications price factor and the Public Service Commission must publish the factor annually. The 2002 Group I Essential Telecommunications Price Factor is .0128% and the 2002 Group II Essential Telecommunications Price Factor is .7003%. Group I includes Qwest Corporation. Group II includes all other local exchange telephone companies.

Therefore, under North Dakota law, Qwest Corporation may increase the price of local calling by .0128% for the year 2002, and Citizens Telecommunications may increase the price of local calling by .7003%.
