Halloween is the third most expensive holiday of the year, right behind Christmas and Valentine's Day. Even though we don't exchange expensive gifts on Halloween, it is easy to rack up big bills on costumes, candy, decorations and admission fees to events.

The good news is that there are many easy ways to save money on Halloween expenses without compromising on having fun. Consider these savings tips this year:

Costumes: It can cost $35 to $50 for many popular children's costumes, which adds up quickly if you have more than one child. With a little creativity, you and your children can make easy costumes with items you have around the house. You can also shop at a local thrift store to buy vintage clothing to use as costumes. A place to check for ideas is www.familyfun.com, which lists 100 easy and inexpensive outfit together. Candy: If you live in will most likely be buying to give out on Halloween. The challenge is to avoid buying -- who wants bags of candy when our kids come with far more than they conservative and buy a than you think you ne likely, it will be enough.

You can also save candy by watching for sales and coupons in the Sunday newspaper or coupon circulars. Halloween coupons also came of Sunday newspaper ad the months of September, October. If you haven't seen newspaper coupons, you print coupons for popular of Halloween candy boodlee.com.

Decorations: It is e overboard on spending to decorate your house with plenty of Halloween decorations. One way to save money is to skip the décor and make your own decorations.

The easiest decoration is also fun for kids is pumpkin together. For
