Farmstead report reception description and definition of terms used:

The farmstead reports developed for the Wilton projects have evolved over time as additional information becomes available and the report is used for various assessments, such as the noise and shadow flicker studies. The terms listed below have been used in different farmstead reports. For the purpose of identifying the occupied residences as sensitive receptors for the noise and shadow flicker studies, all of the various receptor status terms were put into two categories: vacant or occupied.

Receptor Status Term	Definition
House (Vacant)	A residence, not currently occupied
Occupied	Currently an occupied residence
House	A residence, may or may not be currently occupied
Barn	A non-residential structure on a farmstead
Non-residential	A non-residential use, such as a barn or industrial structure
Unoccupied	Not a currently occupied residence. May be a residential or non-residential structure
