Re: Anderson Seed Co., Inc.

Dear Ms. Jeffcoat-Sacco and Ms. Richter:

I write to you for two reasons.

First, it was my understanding that the commission was going to be evaluating price later/credit contracts for payment pursuant to the indemnity fund. It has been a few months since that discussion and I'm wondering where the commission is at on its analysis on price later contracts and when individuals with price later contracts can expect to receive payment from the indemnity fund.

Second, I write regarding Attorney Rauleigh Robinson's letter to you of December 18, 2012. From the date of his letter and an attempt to get a judgment it would appear as though the Public Service Commission had already placed Anderson Seed Company into a receivership. Therefore, it would seem improper that he would simply obtain a judgment against the company and not involve the receiver in this. I can't imagine that the Public Service Commission will allow him to execute upon his alleged judgment of $190,003.08. Can you please let me know how you will be handling this matter? My assumption is that at some point in time Mr. Robinson may bring this via motion to the court in Cass County at which time I am certain my clients would at least ask me to put in some sort of amicus brief.

Sincerely,

Michael L. Gust
