A certified check or a cashier's check must be drawn on the Bank of North Dakota or a federally insured, solvent bank. The Commission will retain the bid bonds, cashier's check or certified check of the three (3) lowest bidders until an award is made. Material Testing 2012 Beulah/Zap Phase 13 Invitation for Bid (February 2012)

PART II.
SPECIFIC PROVISIONS

- Sec. 100 Project Objective
- Sec. 200 Scope of Work
- Sec. 300 Provisions
- Sec. 400 Utilization of Disadvantaged Business Enterprises

100. PROJECT OBJECTIVE

The objective of this project is to perform material testing on grout mixtures that will be injected into underground mine workings, and other associated work items at the 2012 Beulah/Zap Phase 13 AML Project located near Beulah and Zap, North Dakota. The testing laboratory shall perform all tests described herein and any additional engineering tests as requested by the Commission Project Manager.

200. SCOPE OF WORK

The proposed scope of work for this project involves: 1) the collection and compressive strength testing of grout test cylinders (4" diameter x 8" length); 2) slump testing; 3) aggregate moisture testing; 4) batch plant inspection, and certification of the proportions and amount of grout components to ensure compliance with specified material component and performance parameters; and, 5) pre- and post-construction structural surveys and stress monitoring of buildings, structures and other areas in the project area. The material testing laboratory will need to provide a trailer (heated, if necessary) or other facility to allow for field curing of test specimens. The testing laboratory shall provide an on-site field representative for the life of the project. This representative shall:

1. Mold and cure test specimens for each 50 cubic yards of grout to be injected. There shall be 3 specimens collected for each test series (approximately 100 test series or 300 specimens).
2. Test the slump of the grout mixture periodically and during the making of each grout test specimens. Grout specimens shall also be tested for mix temperature, unit weight, and batch yield.
3. Test aggregate daily or as necessary to determine moisture content.
4. Certify by signing on delivery slips that ingredients in a truck-load conform to the proportions of the approved mixes. Collect bills of lading and mill certification reports on all grout material admixtures.
5. Collect and store samples of material components at least every 1,000 cubic yards. These samples shall be properly marked to correlate with bills of lading and mill certifications.
6. Collect and sample on-site aggregate for gradation every 1,000 cubic yards or as directed by the Project Manager. [Aggregate shall consist of hard, strong, durable particles free from deleterious materials and shall meet the following gradation requirements: 100% passing a 3/8" mesh sieve, 90% passing a no. 4 mesh sieve, 40-80% passing a no. 30 mesh sieve, and 5-25% passing a no. 200 mesh sieve. The grout mix will consist of (per cubic yard) 100 lbs. Portland Cement, 600 lbs. Flyash, 70 oz. Superplasticizer, aggregate and water.] Based on the initial aggregate gradation and moisture content, establish a baseline mix design to achieve a 10½ inch slump grout and yield of 27 cubic feet per cubic yard.

7. Perform batch plant inspections daily until grout quality control and material component control is established; and, thereafter at the request of the Project Manager. When it appears that material(s) furnished by the grouting contractor fail to meet the construction specifications, the field representative shall direct the attention of the Commission Project Manager to such failure. The testing laboratory shall act as the Project Manager's agent in all matters relating to material(s) testing and shall report to the Project Manager and take instructions only from the Commission Project Manager or his authorized representative.

The testing laboratory must test compressive strength in accordance with the latest ASTM Standards for 100% humidity curing. For each test series, one specimen shall be broken at 14 days, one at 28 days and one held in case additional testing is required. The break intervals for compressive strength testing may be adjusted at the direction of the Project Manager. The grouting contractor's material is required to achieve an unconfined compressive strength of 150 psi at 28 days. Additional testing will not be required once the specified compressive strength (150 psi) has been achieved on that particular test series.

The compression machine used for psi determination on this project shall comply with ASTM C39 for loading rate. Readout of gross load at failure must be accurate to within + or - 10 pounds.

The testing laboratory must furnish compressive test reports to the Project Manager that contains the following:

1. Cylinder identification number, date cast, and injection hole number.
2. Grout material components and proportions.
3. Grout slump, temperature and unit weight.
4. Yield (cubic foot/cubic yard).
5. Date delivered to the laboratory.
6. Date tested.
7. Gross load at failure (pounds) and compressive strength of specimen (psi).

A five (5) day work week (Monday through Friday) is expected. It is also expected that the grouting contractor will work 8-12 hours per day; however, daily and weekly work schedules may vary depending on the grouting contractor's work schedule.

From the time work commences on this project until completion, the testing laboratory shall furnish a field representative that during the normal work week will be used only on this project. The field representative must be able to collect and transport grout samples and equipment in association with the project work areas.

The contract and performance periods for material testing will be concurrent with those of the grouting contractor. The performance period is expected to start approximately June 25, 2012, and run for one hundred (100) consecutive calendar days. The grouting contractor is required to provide the material testing firm with a minimum of three (3) days verbal notice prior to the start date of grout injection operations. Additionally, the grouting contractor will be required to provide the material testing firm with at least 12 hours of advance notice if no work is planned for the following regularly scheduled work day.

300. PROVISIONS

The following special provisions apply:

A. MOBILIZATION

1. Scope of Work – This item consists of all necessary preparatory work and operations which will enable the testing laboratory to start and finish the project. This shall include, but is not limited to such items as equipment, supplies, facilities and other incidentals. Movement of any of these items to and from the project site, any construction or dismantling, and any cost incurred are considered part of this item.
2. Method of Measurement – Mobilization must be measured on a lump sum (L.S.) basis, and shall not exceed 20% of the total contract bid.
3. Basis of Payment – Payment will be made at the L.S. bid price. Partial payment of this item may be allowed as the project progresses and at the discretion of the Project Manager.

B. FIELD REPRESENTATIVE

1. Scope of Work – This item consists of providing a field representative to perform the material testing services outlined above. It is anticipated that the field representative will be required to be on-site approximately 40-60 hours per week during grout injection processes. It is estimated that approximately 275 hours will be required for field representative work.
2. Minimum Qualifications - The designated field representative must be able to collect grout samples and carry a minimum of 50lbs. Field representatives must also be able to transport equipment and grout samples to various areas associated with the project work areas.
3. Method of Measurement – Field representative services must be measured on a per hour basis. Field representative hours shall be recorded daily in the field and submitted to the Project Manager or his representative weekly.
4. Basis of Payment – The hourly bid price will be the basis of payment for the field representative. Such payment shall constitute full payment for all labor, materials, equipment, site clean-up and any other incidentals including travel, meals and lodging required to complete the material testing work as specified. Travel time to and from the work site shall not be a consideration for payment under this line item.

C. LABORATORY TESTING

1. Scope of Work – The laboratory testing must include all work necessary to conduct the compressive strength and other tests on the material samples as specified above.
2. Method of Measurement – Compressive strength tests will be measured on a per series basis. Each series may contain up to three individual specimen breaks, but will require only sufficient testing (breaks) to determine the minimum grout psi requirement. It is anticipated that 100 series of samples will be tested.
3. Basis of Payment – The unit bid price per series will be the basis of payment for laboratory testing.

D. STRUCTURAL SURVEYS AND STRESS MONITORING

1. Scope of Work – Pre- and post-construction structural surveys and monitoring may be required in the project area as instructed by the Project Manager. The surveys will require interior and exterior inspections of structures, foundations, driveways, and surrounding areas prior to and after grout pumping by the material testing firm. Any evidences of stress such as cracking, settlement, or any other structural imperfections or deformities must be measured and recorded graphically, photographically and in narrative form. Crack monitors shall be installed in predetermined locations on visible cracks in the structures or foundations and these must be monitored at regular intervals during proximal grout pumping. Approximately four (4) crack monitors will be needed per unit.

Procedures for structural surveys must be approved by the PSC Project Manager prior to conducting the surveys. Surveys, inspections and installation of crack monitors must be performed by a professional engineer or other person with demonstrated expertise in the types of structural monitoring described.

The grouting contractor will be required to install laser level(s) in or near the structures during grout pumping. The material tester may be required to assist in monitoring the level.

A final report including all observations, measurements, maps, sketches, and photographs must be submitted to, and approved by the Project Manager before final payment is made. This report must provide sufficient information to determine whether grouting activities have caused any significant property damage. Interim reports and consultations may also be required. It is expected that structural surveys and stress monitoring will be required at and around approximately one (1) residence (including houses, garages, outbuildings, yards and driveways) one city street, a paved road, and several unpaved roads and drives. A memo describing generalized structural survey methodology is attached to this document.

This bid item must be submitted on a per unit basis, as additional units may be added by the Project Manager depending on the results of exploratory drilling. Units shall be defined as a residence and all outbuildings associated with the residence (garage, shed, barn, shop, etc.)

2. Method of Measurement – Structural surveys and stress monitoring will be measured on a per unit basis and shall constitute full payment for all labor, materials, equipment, and anything else required to complete the work as specified.
3. Basis of Payment – Payment will be made for all additional units added by the Project Manager based on the submitted per unit bid price.

Memorandum

To: 2012 Beulah/Zap Phase 13, Material Testing IFB

From: Tim Oswald

Date: March 5, 2012 (originally issued March 7, 2000)

Subject: General Methodology for Structural Surveys

Over the past several years, the AML Division received questions from prospective Material Testing bidders regarding procedures for conducting pre- and post-construction structural surveys and stress monitoring. The scope of work for this bid item is dictated by the narrative in Section 300D of the Invitation for Bid document. This memo provides further clarification. It is a guideline rather than a set of requirements and reflects those methods that have been used successfully in past projects. The actual methodology used for structural surveys will be developed by the Contractor and must receive prior approval from the PSC Project Manager.

The objective of pre-construction structural surveys is to document and quantify the existing condition of structures and facilities prior to grout pumping operations. This must be done with sufficient detail and precision that, when the process is repeated after grout pumping operations, a determination can be made whether grouting has caused any property damage. All data gathered during the surveys must be recorded and incorporated in a final report. If structural damage is suspected during the grouting project, consultations and interim reports may also be required.

Structural surveys should include the following:

Visual Inspections and Investigations - Visual Inspections are conducted to check for cracking, settlement, heaving, or any other evidence of structural stress or deformities. Visual surveys should be conducted in basements, along walls and floors (especially where block or concrete is uncovered), along foundations, garages, driveways, outbuildings or slabs, and also along city streets, sidewalks, curbs, etc. Removal and replacement of rugs, furniture, and other items may be necessary. Cracks or other features should be measured with a caliper, crack comparator card, or other device sensitive to within 0.01 inch. The location of the measurement should be clearly marked and the dimensions of the crack recorded. It is best if the feature is identified with a letter/number designation so it can be precisely located and re-measured after grout pumping. High intensity lighting and a water mist can help to make cracks and other deformities more visible.

Investigations should be made to determine the location and apparent condition of water, sewer, electrical and gas lines, septic systems, sprinkler systems and any other structures of facilities that could be affected by grout injection. These locations should be delineated on site maps or drawings.

Crack Monitors - Crack monitors are simple gauges used to measure movement of cracks in brick, concrete, or masonry structures. They should be securely installed on representative visible cracks where structural movement resulting from grouting operations may be expected to occur. They should be numbered for easy recording. Crack monitors cost about $15.00 each and can be ordered from Avongard Products, Ltd., P.O. Box 50940, Irvine, CA 92619-0940, 800-244-7241. <http://www.avongard.com>. Crack monitors can be removed and reused when the project is completed.

Photographs, Charts and Maps - Photographs and/or videotapes should be made of all structures inspected to document any structural defects identified in the visual inspections. These should clearly show any points where measurements have been made or crack monitors installed. Charts should be used to document each measurement and observation before and after construction. The location of these measurements or observations should be delineated on a map or drawings of the site.

Ongoing Stress Monitoring - The grouting contractor will be expected to take a primary role in this monitoring but the material tester may be asked to assist when not busy with grout testing. The grouting contractor will be required to install oscillating laser levels to provide continuous monitoring for structural movement during grout pumping operations. If the material tester notes any change in elevation or evidence of ground movement, surface jacking, or grout seeping to surface, he must immediately notify the grouting contractor or PSC Project Manager.

 - b. Give adequate and timely consideration to the capabilities of known minority or women-owned business enterprises.
 - c. Ensure that known minority or women-owned business enterprises will have equal opportunity to compete for subcontracts, particularly by arranging solicitations, time for the preparation of bids, quantities, specifications, and delivery schedules.
 - d. Maintain records showing (1) procedures which have been adopted to comply with the policies set forth in this clause, including the establishment of a source list of minority or women-owned business enterprises, (2) awards to minority or women-owned business enterprises on the source list, and (3) specific efforts to identify and award subcontracts to minority or women-owned business enterprises.
 - e. Include this special provision "UTILIZATION OF MINORITY OR WOMEN-OWNED BUSINESS ENTERPRISES" with certifications in all subcontracts.
 - f. Cooperate with the State in any studies and surveys of the Contractors' minority or women-owned business enterprises procedures and practices that the State may conduct from time to time.
