Biden aides working to fight 'lame duck' label

ELI STOKOLS
Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — When he takes the presidential oath of office in January at the age of 78, Joe Biden will be the oldest person to hold the office. Fighting off the debilitating “lame-duck” label is already on his advisers’ to-do list.

As they work to fill White House staff and Cabinet posts and strategize about the new administration’s agenda, top advisers are also trying to figure out how to lay down a marker that Biden, who has portrayed himself as a transitional, stabilizing figure — a bridge to the next generation of Democratic leaders — has not ruled out running for a second term as he approaches 82, according to a source familiar with the transition team’s conversations.

The prospect of Biden serving just a single term will remain a matter of speculation no matter what he says. But the Biden circle’s determination to tamp down the chatter reflects an awareness that such talk could hinder his effectiveness in an already challenging situation, one in which he faces dual economic and public health crises without party majorities in Congress to pass an ambitious response.

Perhaps most of all, unchecked speculation that Biden won’t run again would only encourage divisive jockeying to succeed him among Democratic presidential hopefuls waiting in the wings — from his own vice president, Kamala Harris, to prospective Cabinet secretaries, members of Congress and state leaders.

ALEX BRANDON, ASSOCIATED PRESS

President-elect Joe Biden will have to fight off the “lame duck” label to be effective, experts say.

operative and veteran of Florida Sen. Marco Rubio’s 2016 presidential campaign. “To the extent there’s Democrats on the day he’s sworn in angling to be the nominee four years later, that creates a difficult situation for him. Republicans are running for president in 2024 regardless.”

Biden’s confidants — incoming White House chief of staff Ron Klain and senior counselor Steve Ricchetti, along with Anita Dunn, who will be an outside adviser — share that view and are determining how best to preemptively defuse a potentially destabilizing situation within the Biden administration and the Democratic Party. Any perceived daylight between the new president and Harris, or between them and essential party allies such as Massachusetts Sen. Elizabeth Warren, could be magnified by the media into the first skirmishes of a 2024 presidential primary battle.

A Biden transition spokesman pointed to the president-elect’s past comments during the Democratic presidential nomination race, when he said on multiple occasions that he “absolutely” was not ruling out seeking a second term.

Of course, the fact that Biden’s early window to drive his policy agenda is likely a small one is only partly a function of his age.

The bigger challenges are the crises he inherits, his party’s narrow margins in both the Democratic-led House and a Senate where Republicans are likely to maintain a majority, and the likelihood that Trump will try to sabotage him constantly from the sidelines, breaking yet another norm — that former presidents fade into retirement and remain mostly mute about their successors’ actions.

Yet the perception of Biden as a lame duck would only add to his trials, encouraging factions when party unity is essential.

“He’s inheriting the worst crisis since FDR and the Great Depression, but he has a much weaker hand than Roosevelt with the Senate in the hands of the other party, the Democratic House majority reduced and Trump refusing to leave the stage,” said David Gergen, who has served as a counselor to presidents of both parties. “It’s going to be very difficult to govern and get big things done. It’s really important that in first 100 days or more that President-elect Biden undersells and overdelivers.”

In the weeks leading up to Election Day, Biden’s top aides conferred with Democrats on Capitol Hill about an ambitious agenda, including discussions of doing away with the Senate filibuster and a package to combat climate change. They hadn’t planned, however, for Republicans to keep control of the Senate, which will be the case unless Democrats defy the odds and sweep both runoff elections in Georgia on Jan. 5.

The first 100 days of a presidency, historically a new executive’s best opportunity to capitalize on post-election momentum and good feelings, are likely to be especially critical for Biden under the circumstances.

Ronald Reagan, who at 69 in 1981 was the oldest president to take office to that point, allayed much of the anxiety about his age and stamina by empowering his Cabinet and his first chief of staff, James A. Baker III. Reagan’s example offers something of a template for Biden, according to John A. Farrell, a presidential historian.

When Reagan was shot just two months after taking office, “People didn’t know if he was going to seek a second term,” Farrell said. “And he was easily reelected.”

Mack McLarty, who served as President Bill Clinton’s first chief of staff, said that if Biden can begin his presidency by fostering bipartisan collaboration on economic relief and oversee a successful distribution of COVID-19 vaccines, he could build a foundation for other legislative compromises down the road.

STATE OF NORTH DAKOTA PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION Montana-Dakota Utilities Co. Generation Resource Cost Recovery Rates

CASE NO. PU-20-436 NOTICE OF OPPORTUNITY FOR HEARING

November 18, 2020
On October 30, 2020, Montana-Dakota Utilities Co. (MDU) filed a change to its Generation Resource Recovery Rate (GRRR) rates to reflect 2021 projected costs for its Lewis & Clark reciprocating internal combustion engine units.

The effect of the rate change on the bill for a residential customer using 894 kWh per month is an increase of $0.04 per month.

The issues to consider in this proceeding are:

1. Whether the investments and associated costs for the resources qualify for recovery,
2. Whether the incurred costs are reasonable and prudent, and
3. Whether the rate adjustments are consistent with the terms of MDU's tariff.

Those interested are invited to comment on the application in writing. Persons desiring a hearing must file a written request identifying their interest in the proceeding and the reasons for requesting a hearing. Comments and requests for hearing must be received by January 2, 2021. If deemed appropriate, the Commission can determine the matter without a hearing.

JRMC purchases second COVID-19 fighting robot

Public asked to name it

Jamestown Regional Medical Center has purchased its second Xenex LightStrike germ-zapping robot and is asking the public to help name it.

In 2018, the community helped pay for the first robot by donating $100,000 as part of the Giving Hearts Day fundraiser.

"As a thank you, we asked for the community's help to name her," said Lisa Jackson, JRMC Foundation director. "The result was 'R.O.S.I.E.," which stands for 'Robot Offering Safe Ideal Environment.'"

Bacteria and other germs are naturally found everywhere. Despite efforts to disinfect, superbugs like COVID, MRSA and C.diff are resistant to chemicals and common cleaning practices.

Each year, drug-resistant bacteria infect more than 2 million people nationwide and kill 23,000, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. More than 1,800 North Dakotans have been hospitalized due to COVID-19 since March.

That is one of many reasons why JRMC invests in ways to enhance patient care and safety.

The robot pulses environmentally-friendly xenon ultraviolet (UV) light and destroys microscopic bacteria, viruses or other microorganisms. It is 99.9% effective in enhancing environmental cleanliness by destroying hard-to-kill superbugs in hard-to-clean places.

The use of R.O.S.I.E. has increased dramatically since the opening of the JRMC Cancer Center, the expansion of specialty care and because of the pandemic.

"Everyone that comes into the hospital - patients, families, staff - brings germs with them," said Dane Grebel, JRMC environmental services manager.

"Some of these germs are resistant to even the best cleaning solutions and methods available. That is why JRMC invested in this technology. We want the best

Staff from Jamestown Regional Medical Center are shown with the hospital's two Xenex LightStrike germ-zapping robots. JRMC recently acquired a second robot and is holding a contest to name it. The first was named R.O.S.I.E. after a similar contest a few years ago.

JRMC purchased R.O.S.I.E. long before COVID-19; however, she needs help.

"Our environmental services and nursing crews use R.O.S.I.E. in every patient room at least twice between each patient," Grebel said.

Following manual cleaning, R.O.S.I.E.

can disinfect a typical patient or procedure room with its UV light in 10-15 minutes. R.O.S.I.E. is a tool for the hospital but does not replace any person or position at JRMC. The second robot will allow teams to clean more rooms faster.

Speed is important as COVID-19 continues to spread throughout the community.

To celebrate the new Xenex robot to help R.O.S.I.E., JRMC asks children and adults to participate in a Name-The-Robot contest. More than 200 children from Jamestown and rural schools submitted coloring pages and suggestions for names in 2018. JRMC hopes they'll do the same this year.

The Name-The-Robot contest is open through Dec. 4. Submit an entry at www.jrmcnd.com/name-that-robot.

The second robot is one example of JRMC offering the most up-to-date equipment in the region, said Mike Delfs, JRMC president and CEO.

More than 400 health care facilities around the world use Xenex's germ-zapping robots. Numerous health care facilities credit Xenex for helping them reduce their infection rates significantly.

Case No. PU-20-440
NOTICE OF OPPORTUNITY FOR HEARING
November 18, 2020

On November 2, 2020, Montana-Dakota Utilities Co. (MDU) filed a change to its Renewable Resource Cost Adjustment (RRCA) rates. The new rates reflect projected costs through December 31, 2021 related to investment in the Thunder Spirit Wind Project, Cedar Hills Wind Project, and Diamond Willow Wind Project, and reflect a projected under-collected balance of the current RRCA as of December 31, 2020. The effect of the rate change on the bill for a residential customer using 894 kWh per month is an increase of $0.02 per month. The issues to consider in this proceeding are:

- Whether the investments and associated costs for the resources qualify for recovery,
 - Whether the incurred costs are reasonable and prudent, and
 - Whether the rate adjustments are consistent with the terms of MDU's tariff.
- Those interested are invited to comment on the application in writing. Persons desiring a hearing must file a written request identifying their interest in the proceeding and the reasons for requesting a hearing. Comments and requests for hearing must be received by January 2, 2021. If deemed appropriate, the Commission can determine the matter without a hearing. "As a thank you, we asked for the community's help to name her," said Lisa Jackson, JRMC Foundation director. "The result was 'R.O.S.I.E.," which stands for 'Robot Offering Safe Ideal Environment.'"

Bacteria and other germs are naturally found everywhere. Despite efforts to disinfect, superbugs like COVID, MRSA and C.diff are resistant to chemicals and common cleaning practices.

Each year, drug-resistant bacteria infect more than 2 million people nationwide and kill 23,000, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. More than 1,800 North Dakotans have been hospitalized due to COVID-19 since March.

That is one of many reasons why JRMC invests in ways to enhance patient care and safety.

The robot pulses environmentally-friendly xenon ultraviolet (UV) light and destroys microscopic bacteria, viruses or other microorganisms. It is 99.9% effective in enhancing environmental cleanliness by destroying hard-to-kill superbugs in hard-to-clean places.

The use of R.O.S.I.E. has increased dramatically since the opening of the JRMC Cancer Center, the expansion of specialty care and because of the pandemic.

"Everyone that comes into the hospital - patients, families, staff - brings germs with them," said Dane Grebel, JRMC environmental services manager.

"Some of these germs are resistant to even the best cleaning solutions and methods available. That is why JRMC invested in this technology. We want the best

Staff from Jamestown Regional Medical Center are shown with the hospital's two Xenex LightStrike germ-zapping robots. JRMC recently acquired a second robot and is holding a contest to name it. The first was named R.O.S.I.E. after a similar contest a few years ago.

JRMC purchased R.O.S.I.E. long before COVID-19; however, she needs help.

"Our environmental services and nursing crews use R.O.S.I.E. in every patient room at least twice between each patient," Grebel said.

Following manual cleaning, R.O.S.I.E.

can disinfect a typical patient or procedure room with its UV light in 10-15 minutes. R.O.S.I.E. is a tool for the hospital but does not replace any person or position at JRMC. The second robot will allow teams to clean more rooms faster.

Speed is important as COVID-19 continues to spread throughout the community.

To celebrate the new Xenex robot to help R.O.S.I.E., JRMC asks children and adults to participate in a Name-The-Robot contest. More than 200 children from Jamestown and rural schools submitted coloring pages and suggestions for names in 2018. JRMC hopes they'll do the same this year.

The Name-The-Robot contest is open through Dec. 4. Submit an entry at www.jrmcnd.com/name-that-robot.

The second robot is one example of JRMC offering the most up-to-date equipment in the region, said Mike Delfs, JRMC president and CEO.

More than 400 health care facilities around the world use Xenex's germ-zapping robots. Numerous health care facilities credit Xenex for helping them reduce their infection rates significantly.

STATE OF NORTH DAKOTA PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION Montana-Dakota Utilities Co. Renewable Resource Cost Recovery Rates

Case No. PU-20-440
NOTICE OF OPPORTUNITY FOR HEARING
November 18, 2020

On November 2, 2020, Montana-Dakota Utilities Co. (MDU) filed a change to its Renewable Resource Cost Adjustment (RRCA) rates. The new rates reflect projected costs through December 31, 2021 related to investment in the Thunder Spirit Wind Project, Cedar Hills Wind Project, and Diamond Willow Wind Project, and reflect a projected under-collected balance of the current RRCA as of December 31, 2020. The effect of the rate change on the bill for a residential customer using 894 kWh per month is an increase of $0.02 per month. The issues to consider in this proceeding are:

- Whether the investments and associated costs for the resources qualify for recovery,
 - Whether the incurred costs are reasonable and prudent, and
 - Whether the rate adjustments are consistent with the terms of MDU's tariff.
- Those interested are invited to comment on the application in writing. Persons desiring a hearing must file a written request identifying their interest in the proceeding and the reasons for requesting a hearing. Comments and requests for hearing must be received by January 2, 2021. If deemed appropriate, the Commission can determine the matter without a hearing. Quarter of North Dakotans Know Someone Who Has Died of COVID-19

By John Hageman
ND Newspaper Association
A new poll shows nearly one in four North Dakotans know someone who has died from complications of COVID-19, a stark indicator of the pandemic's ongoing devastation in this sparsely populated state.

Meanwhile, more than three-fourths of respondents from the conservative and Republican-led state support some form of mandates to curb the spread of the coronavirus.

The poll was commissioned by the North Dakota Newspaper Association, and responses were gathered online by Nashville, Tenn.-based Coda Ventures from Nov. 4-16. Pollsters questioned 400 North Dakotans from across the state on their attitudes about wearing masks in public, the government's response to the pandemic and how they've been affected by the public health crisis.

There was already plenty of evidence of the pandemic's growing destruction in North Dakota. More than 1 in 1,000 North Dakotans have died from COVID-19 and more than 75,000 have tested positive, straining the state's health care system.

But the North Dakota Newspaper Association poll adds more context to the pandemic's scale.

Nearly half of the poll's respondents reported that they or someone they know has tested positive for COVID-19, and 24 percent said they knew someone who lost their life because they contracted it.

The poll, which was done in partnership with the education and public workers union North Dakota United, also tallied the economic damage left by the pandemic. A third of the respondents said they had seen a reduction in their paycheck, hours or sales. Another 15 percent had been furloughed, laid-off or otherwise lost their job.

And though 83 percent of respondents agreed that wearing masks, social distancing and avoiding crowds is the best way to stop the virus, only 67 percent said they "always" wear a mask in public places. In late October, just before polling began, the White House's coronavirus response coordinator said Bismarck residents' adherence to COVID-19 guidelines was the worst she had seen in the country.

Tanis Welch, an associate professor in public health education at the University of North Dakota, said more people are wearing masks now, but their initial aversion to them has forced more drastic choices today.

"Why weren't we talking about these mask mandates in March, April and May?" she said.

Pollsters gathered most of the responses before North Dakota Gov. Doug Burgum reversed course and issued a statewide mask mandate earlier this month to curb the coronavirus's spread. The order, which is in effect through Dec. 13, also limits bar and restaurant capacity.

Avoiding statewide restrictions by relying on a message of personal responsibility in recent months, the Republican governor said a recent surge in cases required a change.

Despite Burgum's reluctance, the NDNA poll found 60 percent of North Dakotans support a statewide mandatory mask order. That enjoyed less approval than a local government mandate (68 percent support), but it was more popular than a national masking requirement (56 percent support).

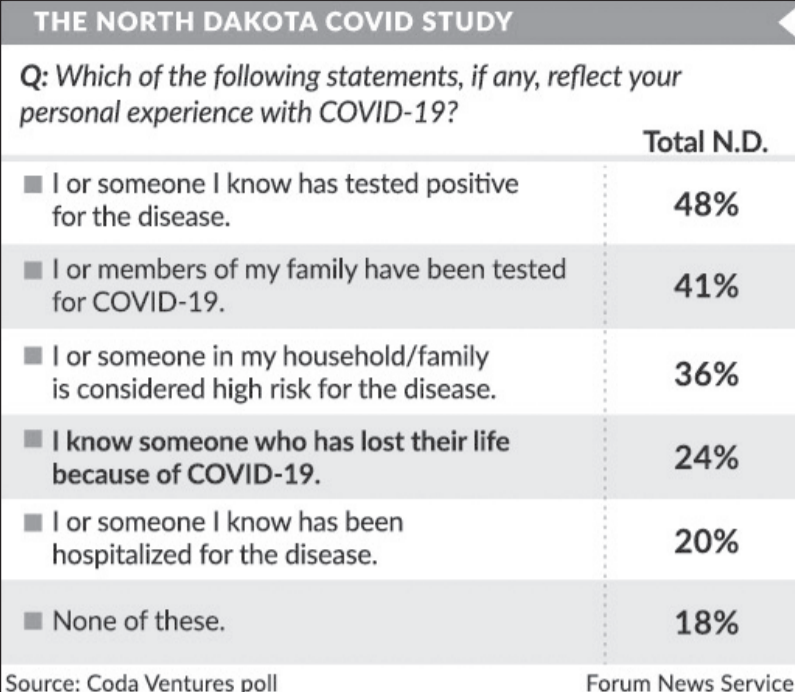

Burgum's spokesman Mike Nowatzki said the governor's decision was based on reduced hospital capacity and "feedback from local leaders and local public health units that enforceable state action would support their local efforts."

"The governor has consistently echoed the recommendations of health experts for increased mask usage and will continue to encourage the use of face coverings to help slow the spread of coronavirus and take pressure off North Dakota's hard-working frontline health care workers," Nowatzki said.

Moreover, 78 percent of poll respondents favored some form of mandates, whether it's social distancing or masking requirements. More than half said businesses like bars, restaurants, entertainment venues, salons and fitness centers should remain open but with capacity limits and social distancing rules.

"Our civic leaders should take a great deal of encouragement that the majority of North Dakotans support these measures," said Dr. Paul Carson, an infectious disease specialist and public health professor at North Dakota State University.

But there have already been signs of resistance to the governor's mandate. Multiple county sheriffs have issued statements saying they won't enforce the masking order, and the Tioga School Board voted against implementing it before financial pressure from the state caused them to reverse course, said Board President Mark Schmidt.

"We're not not wearing masks. The issue is local control and personal choice," he said. "We don't believe that COVID is fake."

Of the 11 percent of survey respondents who said they only sometimes, rarely or never wear a mask, most either questioned their effectiveness or said requiring a face covering "infringes on my freedom of choice."

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention says masks are effective in blocking respiratory particles that spread COVID-19, and it recommends people wear non-valved, multi-layer cloth masks. The federal agency says that's especially important for people who are unknowingly infected with the virus but aren't showing any symptoms.

Carson raised concerns about the state's rate of mask usage as well as the 14 percent of respondents who said they continue to socialize in public places without social distancing, a practice that he said contributes to the virus's spread.

The survey was completed just before the Thanksgiving holiday, which health officials worried would fuel the continued spread of the virus as people gathered with friends and family.

"It's a really critical time coming up with the holidays," said Rena Moch, public health director for the city of Bismarck and Burleigh County. "If we continue to go down the path that we are, the Christmas holiday could be much worse than what we're experiencing right now."

Renewable Resource Cost Recovery Rates
Case No. PU-20-440
NOTICE OF OPPORTUNITY FOR HEARING
November 18, 2020
On November 2, 2020, Montana-Dakota Utilities Co. (MDU) filed a change to its Renewable Resource Cost Adjustment (RRCA) rates. The new rates reflect projected costs through December 31, 2021 related to investment in the Thunder Spirit Wind Project, Cedar Hills Wind Project, and Diamond Willow Wind Project, and reflect a projected under-collected balance of the current RRCA as of December 31, 2020. The effect of the rate change on the bill for a residential customer using 894 kWh per month is an increase of $0.02 per month. The issues to consider in this proceeding are:
1. Whether the investments and associated costs for the resources qualify for recovery,
2. Whether the incurred costs are reasonable and prudent, and
3. Whether the rate adjustments are consistent with the terms of MDU's tariff. Those interested are invited to comment on the application in writing. Persons desiring a hearing must file a written request identifying their interest in the proceeding and the reasons for requesting a hearing. Comments and requests for hearing must be received by January 2, 2021. If deemed appropriate, the Commission can determine the matter without a hearing. For more information contact the Public Service Commission, State Capitol, Bismarck, North Dakota 58505, 701-328-2400 or Relay North Dakota 1-800-366-6888 TTY. STATE OF NORTH DAKOTA PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION

Montana-Dakota Utilities Co. Renewable Resource Coal Recovery Rate Case No. PU-20-440

NOTICE OF OPPORTUNITY FOR HEARING

On November 18, 2020, Montana-Dakota Utilities Co. (MDU) filed a change to its Renewable Resource Coal Recovery Rate (RRCR) case. The new rates reflect projected costs through December 31, 2021 related to investment in the Thunder Spring West Project, the Grand Forks Wind Project, and Diamond Willow Wind Project, and reflect a projected under-collected balance of the current RRCR as of December 31, 2020. The effect of the rate change on the RRCR for a residential customer using 84 kWh per month is an increase of $0.02 per month.

The issues to consider in this proceeding are:
1. Whether the investments and associated costs for the resources qualify for recovery.
2. Whether the incurred costs are reasonable and prudent, and
3. Whether the rate adjustments are consistent with the terms of MDU's tariff. Those interested are invited to comment on the application in writing. Persons desiring a hearing must file a written request identifying their interest in the proceeding and the reasons for requesting a hearing. Comments and requests for hearing must be received by January 2, 2021. If deemed appropriate, the Commission can determine the matter without a hearing. Renewable Resource Cost Recovery Rates

November 18, 2020
On October 30, 2020, Montana-Dakota Utilities Co. (MDU) filed a change to its Generation Resource Cost Recovery Rate (GRRR) rates to reflect 2021 projected costs for its Lewis & Clark reciprocating internal combustion engine units. The effect of the rate change on the bill for a residential customer using 894 kWh per month is an increase of $0.04 per month. The issues to consider in this proceeding are:

1. Whether the investments and associated costs for the resources qualify for recovery.
 2. Whether the incurred costs are reasonable and prudent, and
 3. Whether the rate adjustments are consistent with the terms of MDUs tariff.
- Those interested are invited to comment on the application in writing. Persons desiring a hearing must file a written request identifying their interest in the proceeding and the reasons for requesting a hearing. Comments and requests for hearing must be received by January 2, 2021. If deemed appropriate, the Commission can determine the matter without a hearing.
