Good Morning Mr. Crockford,

Here are a couple pieces of information that you requested yesterday.

- #1 I created a Google Earth KMZ file giving you a rough idea on how HTC's fiber transitions from ROW to easement where Eatherly hit us.
- #2 A copy of the as-built staking sheet from 2010 when the fiber was installed. I circled the location of the cut.

Let me know if you need any additional information.

Thanks,

John,

HTC sent over a better map in a JPG format. Please docket the email and additional map as well.

Konrad,

We are the process of moving our maps to a full GIS platform.

Today I asked my GIS person to located the cable referenced in my complaint and get Lat & Long coordinates to place on our ARCGIS map both sides of where we were hit. This is the red line. The water line is in gray and was determined by following a scar that can still be seen from the project. This will be better than my Google earth drawing.

Thanks,
