NOTICE OF APPLICATION FOR A RENEWAL AND A REVISION OF A PERMIT TO ENGAGE IN SURFACE COAL MINING AND RECLAMATION ACTIVITIES.

Please take notice that BNI Coal Ltd., 2360 35th Avenue SW, Center, North Dakota 58530-9499 has submitted applications to the North Dakota Public Service Commission for Permit Renewal No. 5 and Revision No. 45 to BNCR-9702, approved on August 2, 2000, to engage in surface coal mining and reclamation operations. The area for which a permit renewal is sought includes approximately 7,655 acres in parts of Sections 20, 21, 27, 28, 29, 31, 32, 33 and 34 T142N R84W and parts of Sections 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9 and 10 T141N R84W. This area is in Oliver County, North Dakota and is shown on the accompanying map. Renewal No. 5 will extend the permit term another five years until August 2, 2030. The permit revision depicts the coal removal subarea for the next five year permit term. The permit revision will update the Legal and Financial Section, the extended mine plan, the operations, the blasting plan, post-mine topography, reclamation, ground water, surface water management, wildlife monitoring, post mining land use sections and the worst case bond estimate.

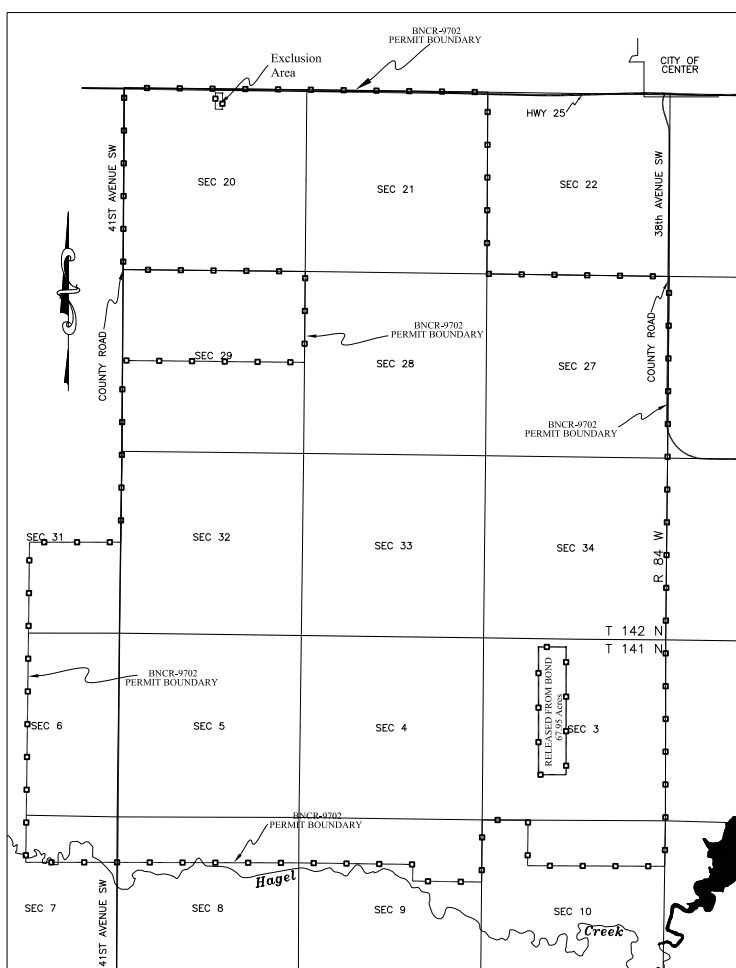

The renewal application and the application for revision of the surface coal mining permit are available for public inspection at the offices of the North Dakota Public Service Commission, 600 East Boulevard Avenue, Bismarck, ND, 58505-0480, and the County Auditor, Oliver County Courthouse, Center, ND, 58530.

Jaguars release veteran receiver Davis

MARK LONG
AP Pro Football Writer

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. — The Jacksonville Jaguars released veteran receiver Gabe Davis on Wednesday, moving on nearly 14 months after signing him to a three-year, $39 million contract in free agency.

The Jaguars designated it as a post-June 1 cut, meaning it will cost them $5.7 million against the salary cap in 2025 instead of $20.3 million. Nonetheless, Jacksonville's new decision makers clearly thought it would be better to take on dead money than have Davis on the roster as a fourth or fifth receiver.

Davis, 26, is still recovering from a torn meniscus in his left knee sustained in mid-November and likely would have started the season on the physically unable to perform list. But he really became expendable once the Jaguars traded up to select two-way star Travis Hunter with the second pick in the NFL draft. They also signed speedy receiver Dyami Brown to a one-year, $10 million deal in free agency.

Throw in Brian Thomas Jr., who made the Pro Bowl

as a rookie, and the Jaguars didn't see how Davis would fit — especially since he didn't contribute much on special teams in five NFL seasons.

Davis played in 10 games last year, with nine starts, and finished with 20 receptions for 239 yards and two touchdowns. He caught 163 passes for 2,730 yards and 27 touchdowns in four years with Buffalo. He had six more TD receptions in the playoffs.

The 6-foot-2 Davis grew up in nearby Orlando and was supposed to be a bigger target for quarterback Trevor Lawrence. But his role never materialized despite a deal that included $24 million guaranteed, and first-time general manager James Gladstone and first-time head coach Liam Coen are moving forward with Hunter and Thomas as Lawrence's 1-2 punch for the foreseeable future. Cutting Davis is the latest and most costly offensive adjustment made by Jacksonville's new regime. The team replaced two offensive linemen — retiring center Mitch Morse and guard Brandon Scherff — traded veteran receiver Christian Kirk to Houston and cut veteran tight end Evan Engram.

The Jags also drafted two linemen, two running backs and made a splashy move to get Hunter to replace some of the losses.

The $2.8 billion NCAA settlement awaiting final approval from a federal judge is touted as a solution for thousands of athletes to finally get the money they deserve and provide some clarity to recruiting. For some, it's too late.

Sophomore distance runner Jake Rimmel says he was one of five walk-ons cut from Virginia Tech's cross country team after Thanksgiving break. Rimmel decided to take a leave of absence and train independently while considering his next move — something that's proven easier said than done.

"Everyone's got their hands tied right now, so there's just not many opportunities for me," Rimmel told the Associated Press. "I've just been having to bet on myself and trust the process. It's just been lonely. I've been at home training by myself and living with my family again. Thank God for my family and all, I appreciate them. It's still kind of lonely though, being out of the norm, not being at school and with my friends."

Pending approval, the so-called House settlement will allow schools to share revenue with athletes directly for use of their name, image and likeness (NIL). That could secure generational wealth for some but not others, and replacing scholarship caps with roster limitations is expected to leave walk-ons, partial scholarship earners, non-revenue sport athletes and high school recruits at risk. There are deep concerns about the potential impact on sports that feed the U.S. Olympic teams.

U.S. District Judge Claudia Wilken told attorneys handling the settlement to come back to her with a plan soon to protect athletes currently or recently on rosters at schools across the country, a request seen as a way to soften the blow.

What that looks like is anyone's guess for now, but thousands of athletes like Rimmel have no idea where they might be this fall or are in jeopardy of no longer playing college sports at all. And many athletes balancing school and their sport are unaware of what's at stake and have more questions than answers.
