Wembanyama, Spurs motivated by Finals heartbreak

FIELD LEVEL MEDIA

Victor Wembanyama said Monday that the San Antonio Spurs' loss to the New York Knicks in the NBA Finals stayed with him throughout the off-season, but he has no interest in running from the disappointment.

Instead, Wembanyama plans to use it.

The 22-year-old acknowledged during the Spurs' media day that there were nights when the end of last season remained difficult to put aside.

"I've had a few sleepless nights," Wembanyama said, later describing the emotions as "haunting sometimes."

"But there's just a point where you accept that you have to go through it, and you have to feel all of it. We're going to face these emotions. We're in a great spot. We're very hopeful, very ambitious and ready," he added.

San Antonio reached the NBA Finals in Wembanyama's third season before New York ended its run in five games. The Spurs had opportunities to make the series considerably different, surrendering double-digit advantages in each of their four losses.

None was more painful than Game 4, when San Antonio led by 29 points before the Knicks completed the largest comeback in NBA Finals history to win 107-106. New York closed out the series three nights later.

That experience has also changed what constitutes success in San Antonio.

The Spurs weren't widely expected to play into June last season, but reaching the Finals has raised the bar considerably entering 2026-27.

"The definition of success changed," Wembanyama said.

San Antonio won the Western Conference last season by beating Oklahoma City in seven games, but Wembanyama made clear that simply getting back to that point won't satisfy the Spurs.

"We won the West last year. We don't want to do anything less this year, and we want to be the first seed," he said.

Wembanyama was at the center of San Antonio's rapid rise.

He averaged career highs of 25.0 points, 11.5 rebounds and 3.1 assists over 64 regular-season games while leading the NBA with 3.08 blocks per contest. He became the youngest Defensive Player of the Year in league history before averaging 26.0 points, 11.2 rebounds and 3.6 blocks against New York in the Finals.

San Antonio rewarded him with a multiyear extension in July.

Warriors: Curry raring to go, Porzingis out again

Stephen Curry's contract is settled and his knee feels healthy as the Golden State Warriors prepare to decamp for Hawaii to kick off training camp.

Curry signed a two-year contract extension on Friday worth $116 million, including a player option for the 2028-29 campaign. The four-time NBA champion has spent his entire career with the Warriors.

"This is home," Curry said Monday at the team's preseason media day. "This is what we've built. This is a community that I've played in front of my entire career. Being able to finish the story the right way is a big part of what I can control."

The Warriors' front office presented Curry with multiple options, including the maximum contract he was eligible for: a $136.7 million extension over two years. Curry left roughly $20.7 million on the table over the two-year extension.

"Without knowing the answers to the test, it was my best way to study for it, if that makes sense," Curry said. "It's about for us to have a chance this season ... We're all smart people in this room. So you can kind of read the tea leaves on why it's designed the way that it is."

Curry added that he isn't interested in "fast-forwarding" to the trade deadline or next offseason, instead focusing on preparing for his 18th NBA campaign.

"If it's the alternative (and we aren't competitive), then you make decisions based off of that, too," Curry said. "I think for me (the contract decision) is how I've approached every opportunity in my career. You can't fast-forward your mind, or else you're not going to be to do your job as a player to try to win."

Notice of Filing a Permit Revision to Conduct Surface Coal

MINING OPERATIONS AND TO ADD AREA TO AN EXISTING SURFACE COAL MINING PERMIT

The Falkirk Mining Company, P.O. Box 1087, Underwood, ND 58576, has filed an application (Revision No. 41) to Permit NAFK-9503 to add mining plans for the W½ of the NW¼ of Section 32, T145N, R83W and add additional mining plans to the SE¼ of Section 32, T145N, R83W. The SW¼ of Section 32, T145N, R83W will be added back into the permit, which will include surface disturbance only at this time. This quarter was removed from the permit in 2023. Also, the post-mine topography was revised for a large portion of mined and unmined areas within the permit. The revised post-mining topography will bring the permit area into a mass balance and takes into account the most current mine plan that reflects mining conditions and needs at this time. As a result of this permit revision, Falkirk updated the introductory, legal, compliance, surface and coal ownership information, pre-mining land use and vegetation information, operations plans, blasting map, existing structures map, extended mine plan, transportation facilities, surface water management, post-mining land use and revegetation information, reclamation plans and schedules and wetland sections.

The permit area is located southwest of Underwood, North Dakota. The map shows the location of the City of Underwood, North Dakota, and the boundaries of the permit area.
