Kansas extends Players Era relationship

FIELD LEVEL MEDIA

Kansas men’s basketball and the Players Era Festival announced a five-year extension to their agreement, ensuring the Jayhawks will play in the in-season tournament through November 2030.

Kansas is perhaps the most decorated blue blood to participate in the Las Vegas-based tournament in its two-year existence. The Jayhawks were not part of the original eight-team field in 2024, but they signed on in 2025 and went on to take third place by beating Tennessee in the top consolation game.

The Big 12 Conference had previously reached a five-year agreement with the Players Era to provide eight teams to their tournaments per year, in exchange for a 15% stake and guaranteed revenues going toward player NIL. But the Kansas agreement is apparently separate from that.

“We’re grateful to have Kansas, one of the preeminent collegiate basketball programs, return for the next several years,” Players Era CEO Seth Berger said in a statement. “It’s an extraordinary testament to what we’re building here with Player’s Era — a competition that delivers an exceptional experience for both fans and student-athletes alike in an atmosphere that feels like March in November.”

The 2026-27 Players Era will expand to 24 teams and include a new format with two separate, single-elimination brackets, one of eight teams and one of 16.

Kansas, with head coach Bill Self entering his 24th year on the job, will face UNLV in the first round of what’s being called the “Players Era Eight.”

Baylor, Houston, Iowa State, Kansas State, TCU, Texas Tech and West Virginia are also signed up for the upcoming season.

Top-ranked SG of 2028 reclassifies’ 27

Georgia high school shooting guard A.J. Williams is jumping a year to reclassify to the recruiting class of 2027.

Williams attends Eagles Landing Christian Academy in Georgia and emerged from the summer AAU circuit as the No. 1 recruit in the Class of 2028. He told ESPN on Tuesday he will instead join this year’s senior class. ESPN ranked Williams, a polished 6-foot-7 combo guard, seventh in the Class of 2027.

Williams turned 17 in June and said in a social media post he plans to visit at least nine schools when official visits begin in the fall.

Georgia and Georgia Tech are vying to keep Williams in the state but competition will be fierce given UConn, Duke, North Carolina, Illinois, Auburn and Mississippi State also are in the mix, according to Williams.

247Sports lists Georgia

Tech as the early favorite to land Williams with Auburn a close second.

Multiple services now list California high school center Yann Kamagate, who is over seven feet tall but can shoot from the perimeter, as the No. 1 player in the Class of 2028.

Kamagate has offers from Duke, North Carolina, Arizona, Alabama, Baylor and Kansas, among others.

Bill Self is entering his 24th season as head coach at Kansas.
