Sweet potato or pumpkin pie?

SOPHIE BATES
Associated Press

FLOWOOD, Miss. — They're both round, orange and probably bad for your health, but which is the better Thanksgiving dessert: pumpkin or sweet potato pie?

For most people, the answer likely depends on where they're from.

The two Thanksgiving favorites have more in common than not. They're similar in color, taste and texture, and derived from European carrot pie. Those similarities make them all the easier to compare.

"Pumpkin," said Lori Robinson, a customer at Sugar Magnolia Takery in Flowood, Mississippi. "My mom cooks it every Thanksgiving, Christmas, every time. It's way better than sweet potato."

Unlike some bakeries in the area, Sugar Magnolia Takery makes both pumpkin and sweet potato pies.

Owner Elizabeth Arnold said the main difference between the pies in her bakery comes down to spice. Sweet potato is sweeter, made with white and brown sugar. Pumpkin pie is less sweet and spicier.

"Sweet potato pie. All day," said Xavier Pittman, another customer.

At Arnold's bakery, sweet potato tends to outsell pumpkin.

That's not surprising in a southern bakery, explained Adrian Miller, a culinary author known as the "Soul Food Scholar."

Sweet potato pie, he said, is particularly popular in the South, where sweet potatoes have deep roots in the region's culture, economy and painful past.

"If there were to be a Mount Rushmore of soul food desserts, sweet potato pie would definitely be there," Miller said.

Pumpkin pie, while ubiquitous, is more often associated with the northern part of the country.

The stereotypes boil down to this: Pumpkin pie is favored by white northerners while sweet potato pie is a favorite among Black southerners. But for culinary historian and author Michael W. Twitty, the issue is more nuanced.

With both desserts ingrained in American history, tradition and culture, the debate over which is better, Twitty argues, is really about identity.

"We can have fun with good-natured ribbing between regions and cultures," Twitty said. "At the same time, don't let it get too serious to the point where it's like hard, fast markers of who you are, who I am, who we are."

Raised in Washington, D.C., Twitty didn't grow up in the Deep South. But the South, he said, has grown up in him. His family's southern roots stretch back to the 17th century.

"Everybody would always bring like two homemade sweet potato pies," Twitty said of his childhood Thanksgivings.

The intertwining of sweet potatoes and southern Black culture began with slavery. Sweet potatoes were a staple for many enslaved people in the Americas, Twitty said. It was an accessible, familiar food, similar to the yams and cassava that make up a cornerstone of African cuisine.

Enslaved people are credited with perfecting the sweet potato pie recipe, though Europeans are thought to be the first to attempt such a delicacy.

Some believe slavery is the reason sweet potato pie didn't take off in the North. An abolitionist movement advocated boycotting goods produced by enslaved people but, Twitty said, the answer is likely simpler: access.

Sweet potatoes and pumpkins were both available in the South. In the North, however, early Americans didn't have much access to the orange sweet potatoes we think of today, Miller said. Instead, northern sweet potatoes had white flesh and a more mealy texture.

With limited access to sweet potatoes in the North, pumpkin likely reigned supreme. The tradition of pumpkin pie goes back centuries to the colonial period, Miller said. A recipe for pumpkin pie was included in the nation's first cookbook, written in 1796 by Amelia Simmons.

While there may be some truth to the culinary divide, Twitty said the stereotypes don't hold up in many communities. Miller, who also has southern ancestry, said he grew up eating pumpkin and sweet potato pie on Thanksgiving.

"There will also be somebody, every single day, every single year who will break the rules," Twitty said.

Shop and cook smarter this Thanksgiving

KIKI SIDERIS AND CALEIGH WELLS
Associated Press

A major highlight of Thanksgiving is the menu, but the big meal can come with a lot of wasted food. Experts say a pinch of extra planning can ensure more gets eaten.

Roughly 320 million pounds of food will be wasted at Thanksgiving this year, according to ReFED, a nonprofit that tracks food waste. ReFED says that's largely because people prepare more food than is needed for the meal and then don't finish the leftovers.

"That is essentially like five meals each for all of the food insecure people in the U.S.," said Yvette Cabrera, food waste director at Natural Resources Defense Council.

It's also a problem because most of that waste ends up in landfills, where it releases the potent planet-warming gas methane, according to the Environmental Protection Agency. But a lot of those emissions are avoidable.

Here are some tips for a climate-smarter Thanksgiving meal without ditching tradition.

JOHN HAEGER — STANDARD-SPEAKER

FILE — Jose Fetterolf carves a turkey for Thanksgiving in Hazle Township Pa., Nov. 23, 2022.

Curbing waste starts at the store

Chef and cookbook author Joel Gamoran, who focuses on cooking with food scraps, says the key to cutting Thanksgiving waste starts before you even turn on the oven.

He recommends a quarter pound of cooked turkey per person and about a fistful — or half a cup — of each side dish per person. Cabrera said the most wasted foods are typically turkey and dairy products such as milk or cream bought for recipes.

When you're buying a whole bird, you should factor in the weight of the bones and giblets. The Natural Resources Defense council's food estimation tool recommends 0.75 pounds per person.

Cabrera also recommends buying food in the grocery store that's close to its expiration date, or produce that's misshapen or unattractive, because those are more likely to go unsold and be discarded.

Cooking with common food scraps

Lots of food gets wasted because home cooks don't think to use it.

"It's OK to make the whole bird," Gamoran said. "But have a plan for how you're going to take advantage of that later on. What are you going to do with the carcass, all that extra meat?"

He likes to make turkey stock with the carcass by covering it in a pot with cold water, bringing it to a boil and then simmering it for two hours. You can fold that stock into mashed potatoes, use it to thicken soup, or freeze it for months.

Gamoran's favorite trick for the rest of the scraps is to use them like ingredients, not trash.

"Carrot tops are like an herb," he said. "You can treat it like basil or parsley and make a really beautiful pesto out of it, and then put them in ice cube trays to freeze them. Those go really nice in stir fries and salads and soups."

He'll also roast butternut squash shells, cover them with vinegar and strain them out after a day for a rich umami vinegar that can be used in cooking.

Potato skins can be tossed in oil and paprika, air fried and turned into potato chips or croutons.

Onion peels can be dried in the oven at 200 degrees Fahrenheit (94 degrees Celsius) for 20 minutes, then ground in the food processor for homemade onion powder. This method also works with garlic skins.

Generation Resource Cost Recovery Rates
NOTICE OF OPPORTUNITY FOR HEARING
On October 31, 2025, Montana-Dakota Utilities Co. (MDU) filed a change to its Generation Resource Recovery (GRR) rates to reflect 2026 amortization of Lewis & Clark Unit I and Heskett Units I and II regulatory assets. This incorporates the reduction of annual amortization resulting from the MDU 2023 Earnings Sharing Refund Plan in Case PU-24-177. The effect of the rate change on the bill for a residential customer using 800 kWh is a decrease of $0.05 per month compared to the existing GRR rate. The issues to consider in this proceeding are:
1. Whether the investment and associated costs for the resources qualify for recovery,
2. Whether the incurred costs are reasonable and prudent, and
3. Whether the rate adjustments are consistent with the terms of MDU's tariff?
Those interested are invited to comment on the application in writing. Persons desiring a hearing must file a written request identifying their interest in the proceeding and the reasons for requesting a hearing. Comments and requests for hearing must be received by January 2, 2026. If deemed appropriate, the Commission can determine the matter without a formal hearing.

Renewable Resource Cost Recovery Rates
NOTICE OF OPPORTUNITY FOR HEARING
On October 31, 2025, Montana-Dakota Utilities Co. (MDU) filed a change to its Renewable Resource Cost Adjustment (RRCA) rates. The new rates reflect projected costs through December 31, 2026, related to its investment in the Thunder Spirit, Cedar Hills, Diamond Willow and Badger Wind Projects. The total costs to be recovered through the proposed rates represent an increase of $25,332,090 or 139% from the current RRCA. Most of this increase is due to the addition of Badger Wind. A residential customer using 800 kWh a month would see a $9.98 monthly billing increase. The issues to be considered in this proceeding are:
1. Whether the investment and associated costs for the resources qualify for recovery,
2. Whether the incurred costs are reasonable and prudent, and
3. Whether the rate adjustments are consistent with the terms of MDU's tariff?

Case No. PU-25-279
Renewable Resource Cost Recovery Rates
NOTICE OF OPPORTUNITY FOR HEARING

On October 31, 2025, Montana-Dakota Utilities Co. (MDU) filed a change to its Renewable Resource Cost Adjustment (RRCA) rates. The new rates reflect projected costs through December 31, 2026, related to its investment in the Thunder Spirit, Cedar Hills, Diamond Willow and Badger Wind Projects. The total costs to be recovered through the proposed rates represent an increase of $25,332,090 or 139% from the current RRCA. Most of this increase is due to the addition of Badger Wind.

A residential customer using 800 kWh a month would see a $9.98 monthly billing increase.

The issues to be considered in this proceeding are:

1. Whether the investment and associated costs for the resources qualify for recovery,
2. Whether the incurred costs are reasonable and prudent, and
3. Whether the rate adjustments are consistent with the terms of MDU's tariff?

Those interested are invited to comment on the application in writing. Persons desiring a hearing must file a written request identifying their interest in the proceeding and the reasons for requesting a hearing. Comments and requests for hearings must be received by January 2, 2026. If deemed appropriate, the Commission can determine the matter without a formal hearing.

Generation Resource Cost Recovery Rates
NOTICE OF OPPORTUNITY FOR HEARING

PUBLIC NOTICE

On October 31, 2025, Montana-Dakota Utilities Co. (MDU) filed a change to its Generation Resource Recovery (GRR) rates to reflect 2026 amortization of Lewis & Clark Unit I and Heskett Units I and II regulatory assets. This incorporates the reduction of annual amortization resulting from the MDU 2023 Earnings Sharing Refund Plan in Case PU-24-177.

The effect of the rate change on the bill for a residential customer using 800 kWh is a decrease of $0.05 per month compared to the existing GRR rate.

The issues to consider in this proceeding are:

1. Whether the investment and associated costs for the resources qualify for recovery,
2. Whether the incurred costs are reasonable and prudent, and
3. Whether the rate adjustments are consistent with the terms of MDU's tariff?

STATE OF NORTH DAKOTA PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION Montana-Dakota Utilities Co. Case No. PU-25-279 Renewable Resource Cost Recovery Rates

NOTICE OF OPPORTUNITY FOR HEARING On October 31, 2025, Montana-Dakota Utilities Co. (MDU) filed a change to its Renewable Resource Cost Adjustment (RRCA) rates. The new rates reflect projected costs through December 31, 2026, related to its investment in the Thunder Spirit, Cedar Hills, Diamond Willow and Badger Wind Projects. The total costs to be recovered through the proposed rates represent an increase of $25,332,090 or 139% from the current RRCA. Most of this increase is due to the addition of Badger Wind.

A residential customer using 800 kWh a month would see a $9.98 monthly billing increase. The issues to be considered in this proceeding are:

1. Whether the investment and associated costs for the resources qualify for recovery,
2. Whether the incurred costs are reasonable and prudent, and
3. Whether the rate adjustments are consistent with the terms of MDU's tariff?

Those interested are invited to comment on the application in writing. Progressive Ag Market Update with Tom Lilja

By Tom Lilja

injection, an electric start, hand warmers and a teenager blowing snow in the driveway, the reality of inflation set in. I took her into a few stores to see what weight she could handle, and the sticker shock hit me. They sure know what they want for all the bells and whistles. The reality is I'll have to look on marketplace to explore a few more options and I'll probably find an old tank for a more reasonable price. She likely avoids snow blowing for at least two more years.

Despite the tight populations in the Cattle on Feed report November 21st, the cattle market opened this week and quickly ran limit-down. A Tyson beef plant in Nebraska closed it's doors due to losses from processing beef, citing negative margins as the reasoning. The facility has the capacity for 5,000 head per day but probably has been running well below this. This is a signal to the market that packers won't be as competitive as they have been bidding, even though there will be less capacity during the closure. Bearish news is prevailing in the cattle market as we already sit far off this year's highs, led by the tariff removal on foreign imports, disappointing demand figures, and a sharp technical downtrend forming mid-October. It looks like the Cattle on Feed report will not give us much of a recovery, and with beef in the policy crosshair it will be difficult to see prices turn to the upside. Shifting fundamentals like tariff removals on (low quality) foreign beef and expectations of a Mexican border reopening in the near future has changed the situation for these markets. We are witnessing high prices curing high prices.

The Cattle on Feed report showed cattle on feed -2% vs. expectations of -2.2%, placements were -10% vs. expectations of -7.9%, and marketings were -8% vs. expectations of -7.6% from last year. Note Minnesota info was absent from report

Northern and eastern Texas and eastern Oklahoma received beneficial rainfall over the past weekend. Showers are currently falling in central & eastern Kansas which gave more pressure to the winter wheat complex. The 6 to 10 day outlook shows good precipitation chances for the southern plains and the soft red belt with temperatures expected colder than normal.

Locating Radio Locator

UPSIDE DOWN UNDER

By: Marvin Baker

There are numerous other features. You can find radio stations from your location. It will use your location, if it's known, to provide a list of radio stations in your geographical region. As mentioned, type in the city or call letters, find a station by format, and finally who is streaming and who isn't.

Let's say you like the Chicago Black Hawks hockey team. Radio Locator will help you find WGN, 720-AM which streams the Black Hawks. It can also tell you the power of said radio station that might help determine if you can receive it in your geographical area.

Just go to (radiolocator.com) and type in Chicago or the call letters, WGN, and it will tell you exactly where the transmitter is located, the format, the power, etc.

I recently found an unfamiliar radio station on 750 AM. All I knew was the frequency. After a Google search, it told me it was in Melfort, Saskatchewan. So, I typed in Melfort and found it to be CKJH. From that point, I was able to get its power output, 25,000 watts, the number of transmitting towers it uses and it's grid coordinates. I also found out it serves the nearby city of Saskatoon.

Another station was found on 1060 AM. Not being familiar with it, I listened until I heard a commercial about Grossenburg Implement, a John Deere dealership. I know there is a Grossenburg Implement in Winner, S.D., so I thought it must be in South Dakota someplace. Winner is close to Pierre so I typed "Pierre" into Radio Locator and there it was, KGFX, 1060 AM in Pierre.

It has a classic country format, uses 10,000 watts of power and uses four towers to broadcast. And after looking at a daytime coverage map, it shows the fringe area reaching just to the north of Bismarck. I live 155 miles northwest of Bismarck. Yes, it surprised me because I shouldn't be getting KGFX where I live.

FM is a bit different. Because FM radio waves don't travel as far as AM radio waves, we never often know what those radio stations are on our dial. However, sometimes we can be surprised by this as well.

This time I'll use KQZZ, 96.7 FM in Devils Lake as an example. It broadcasts from a tower just to the west of Fort Totten and its fringe area to the west reaches just to Drake and Towner and north and east to Langdon and Park River.

According to Radio Locator, KQZZ transmits 38,000 watts of power, yet I'm able to receive it on any given day and I live roughly 75 miles northwest of Drake.

On the other hand, there is another radio station in Devils Lake on 102.5 FM called "Cruiser 102," and legally called KDVL. I like that radio station and even though it broadcasts 100,000 watts from just east of Fort Totten, I'm seldom able to receive it. KPPD, Prairie Public Radio in Devils Lake, is on 91.7 FM and is always available on my radio dial, but it is farther north and west, near Minnewaukan, so the logic there makes sense.

Streaming from overseas can provide good results. Let's say there's something important going on in a city in Belgium that you absolutely need to know about. You can find Belgian radio stations and Radio Locator will tell you if the station broadcasts in English or French and whether it provides an Internet stream.

Radio Locator is free to use, but there is a limit of 25 entries in a 24-hour period. There's also a pre-mium option that you pay for and can get unlimited access.

Designated Eligible Carrier Application

NOTICE OF OPPORTUNITY FOR HEARING

On October 31, 2025, LTE Wireless Inc. (LTE) filed an application for designation as an eligible telecommunications carrier (ETC) for the purpose of receiving federal universal service support for low-income consumers under 47 CFR Part 54 Subpart E. 2. What ETC universal service support area should be designated?
3. Is designation of the applicant as an ETC in the public interest?

Case No. PU-25-279
Renewable Resource Cost Recovery Rates
NOTICE OF OPPORTUNITY FOR HEARING
On October 31, 2025, Montana-Dakota Utilities Co. (MDU) filed a change to its Renewable Resource Cost Adjustment (RRCA) rates. The new rates reflect projected costs through December 31, 2026, related to its investment in the Thunder Spirit, Cedar Hills, Diamond Willow and Badger Wind Projects. The total costs to be recovered through the proposed rates represent an increase of $25,332,090 or 139% from the current RRCA. Most of this increase is due to the addition of Badger Wind.

A residential customer using 800 kWh a month would see a $9.98 monthly billing increase.

The issues to be considered in this proceeding are:
1. Whether the investment and associated costs for the resources qualify for recovery.
2. Whether the incurred costs are reasonable and prudent, and
3. Whether the rate adjustments are consistent with the terms of MDU's tariff?
Those interested are invited to comment on the application in writing. Persons desiring a hearing must file a written request identifying their interest in the proceeding and the reasons for requesting a hearing. NOTICE OF OPPORTUNITY FOR

HEARING

On October 31, 2025, Montana-

change to its Generation Resource

Recovery (GRR) rates to reflect

2026 amortization of Lewis & Clark

Urit I and Heskett Units I and II

regulatory assets. This incorporates the reduction of annual amortization resulting from the MDU 2023

Renewable Resource Cost

Recovery Rates

NOTICE OF OPPORTUNITY FOR

HEARING

On October 31, 2025, Montana-

Dakota Utilities Co. (MDU) filed a change to its Renewable Resource

Cost Adjustment (RRCA) rates.

The new rates reflect projected costs through December 31,

2026, related to its investment in the Thunder Spirit, Cedar Hills,

Diamond Willow and Badger Wind

Projects. The total costs to be recovered through the proposed rates represent an increase of $25,332,090 or 139% from the current RRCA. Most of this increase is due to the addition of Badger Wind.

A residential customer using 800

kWh a month would see a $9.98

monthly billing increase.

The issues to be considered in this
